It begins with gasoline that is produced by major domestic refineries. Next, the gasoline is supplemented with additives and detergents that contain agents that help prevent, diminish, and remove harmful engine deposits. Finally, a controlled environment and underground storage tanks with fuel-level monitors are used to guarantee Rutter's gas is top quality. Rutter's storage tanks also utilize sensitive electronic monitors and filters that continuously screen the gasoline's condition and stop the stream if water or sediment is detected.

Because Rutter's is committed to delivering superior gasoline that customers can rely on, Rutter's guarantees effectiveness. If Rutter's gasoline causes a problem, we'll pay for the repair.
